Adam Richmond & Friends

Comedians

Adam Richmond is a Los Angeles-based, Canadian-born comedian. He has performed for more than a decade on shows like "Last Call with Carson Daly" and "Last Comic Standing" and in venues that include The Comedy Store, Icehouse, and Improv Comedy Clubs, not to mention venues throughout the United States and Canada. He has also participated three times in an Armed Forces Tour and Marine Corps Tour (MCCS), traveling to Japan, South Korea and Guam in the Asia Pacific to perform for the United States military making them laugh and reminding them of back home.

Adam is known for his high-energy performances, sharp wit and edgy comedic taste, with an almost larger than life stage presence.

Adam has written and produced plenty of projects in LA and has done extensive voice over work with Disney. Adam has signed with one of the most influential VO talent agents in the business and recently filmed a guest role for a TV show on Nickelodeon.

Additionally, Adam guides children who have comedic ambitions. Working alongside Collette Craan, founder of Standing Tall Comedy Kids and Teens, Adam has spent time writing jokes for young, aspiring entertainers, helping them perfect their comedic timing, punching up their delivery and most importantly, giving them the right material to boost their confidence.

Adam understands what the big studios are looking for when it comes to young talent. His work culminates when the children from Standing Tall Comedy Kids and Teens perform in two showcases each year, held at the Hollywood Improv and the Edgemar Centre. The young comedians take to the stage to perform their jokes and showcase their talent in front of a live crowd of their parents and friends.

With veteran comedians like Adam Richmond taking the time to nurture the next generation, we can all rest assured that the future will be funny indeed.
